DETAILED ACTION

Response to Amendment

The examiner is in receipt of applicants response to office action mailed 1/31/2005, which was received 4/29/2005. Acknowledgment is made to the amendment to claim 27 and 35, leaving claims 1-35 as pending in the instant application. The examiner has carefully considered the amendments and remarks and finds them convincing in overcoming the rejection on the merits but was not convincing in overcoming the USC 101 rejection. Therefore the USC 101 rejection and the drawing objection are restated below and a new grounds of rejection on the merits is provided below:

Drawings

This application has been filed with informal drawings, which are acceptable for examination purposes only. The figures contain improper hand written text that may affect clarity when reproduced.

Applicant required to submit a formal correction of the noted defect. Applicant is required to submit drawing corrections promptly. Drawing objections may no longer be held in abeyance.

Examiner's Note

Examiner has cited particular columns and line numbers or figures in the references as applied to the claims below for the convenience of the applicant. Although the specified citations are representative of the teachings in the art and are applied to the specific limitations within the individual claim, other passages and figures may apply as well. It is respectfully requested from the applicant, in preparing the responses, to fully consider the references in entirety as potentially teaching all or part of the claimed invention, as well as the context of the passage as taught by the prior art or disclosed by the examiner.

35 USC 101 Rejection

35 U.S.C. 101 reads as follows:

Whoever invents or discovers any new and useful process, machine, manufacture, or composition of matter, or any new and useful improvement thereof, may obtain a patent therefor, subject to the conditions and requirements of this title.

Claims 27-35 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 101 because the claimed invention is directed to non-statutory subject matter.

The basis of this rejection is set forth in a two-prong test of:

- (1) whether the invention is within the technological arts; and
- (2) whether the invention produces a useful, concrete, and tangible result.

For a claimed invention to be statutory, the claimed invention must be within the technological arts. Mere ideas in the abstract (i.e., abstract idea, law of nature, natural phenomena) that do not apply, involve, use, or advance the technological arts fail to promote the "progress of science and the useful arts" (i.e., the physical sciences as opposed to social sciences, for example) and therefore are found to be non-statutory subject matter. For a process claim to pass muster, the recited process must somehow apply, involve, use, or advance the technological arts. The phrase "technological arts" has been created and used by the courts to offer another view of the term "useful arts". See In re Musgrave, 167 USPQ (BNA) 280 (CCPA 1970). Moreover, the courts have found that a claimed computer implemented process was within the "technological art" because the claimed invention was an operation being performed by a computer within a computer. See In re Toma, 197 USPQ (BNA) 852 (CCPA 1978). Finally, the Board of Patent Appeals and Interferences (BPAI) has recently affirmed a §101 rejection finding the claimed invention to be non-statutory based on a lack of technology. See Ex parte Bowman, 61 USPQ2d (BNA) 1669 (BdPatApp&Int 2001).

In the present case, the method may be done by hand and placing the phrase "computer implemented" in the preamble does not identify which steps or steps of the method are being computer implemented.

Further, for a claimed invention to be statutory, the claimed invention must be within the technological arts. Mere ideas in the abstract (i.e., abstract idea, law of nature, natural phenomena) that do not apply, involve, use, or advance the technological arts fail to promote the "progress of science and the useful arts" (i.e., the physical sciences as opposed to social sciences, for example) and therefore are found to be non-statutory subject matter. For a process claim to pass muster, the recited process must somehow apply, involve, use, or advance the technological arts. The phrase "technological arts" has been created and used by the courts to offer another view of the term "useful arts". See In re Musgrave, 167 USPQ (BNA) 280 (CCPA 1970). Moreover, the courts have found that a claimed computer implemented process was within the "technological art" because the claimed invention was an operation being performed by a computer within a computer. See In re Toma, 197 USPQ (BNA) 852 (CCPA 1978). Finally, the Board of Patent Appeals and Interferences (BPAI) has recently affirmed a §101 rejection finding the claimed invention to be non-statutory based on a lack of technology. See Ex parte Bowman, 61 USPQ2d (BNA) 1669 (BdPatApp&Int 2001).

As to technological arts recited in the preamble, mere recitation in the preamble (i.e., intended or field of use) or mere implication of employing a machine or article of manufacture to perform some or all of the recited steps does not confer statutory subject matter to an otherwise abstract idea unless there is positive recitation in the claim as a whole to breathe life and meaning into the preamble.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1-14,24-31,34,35 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Eder.

In regards to claims 1-14,24-31,34,35, Eder discloses all the features of the instant claims. For instance, Eder teaches discounts based on both tables and formulas

Art Unit: 3625

(col 62) and ranking of discounts (col 62, lines 35-55, one with highest savings is ranked highest, see also maximizing formulations).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

Claims 15-23,32,33 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Eder (5,615,109) in view of Abdou.

In regards to claims 15-23,32,33, Eder teaches maximizing profits by buying volumes that create a discount on a variety of different items and groups, but does not specifically mention that a coop is being used to aggregate orders to accieve the next level of discount. Abdou teaches a transaction provider that aggregates orders from a plurality of buyers to reach savings that could not be achieved by just one buyer (see abstract and FIG 1). It would be obvious to a person having ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to include in Eder the aggregation techniques of Abdou with Eder, because this would reduce costs to a user while not requiring the user to purchase extra material that could not be efficiently utilized (col 62, lines 45-50).

Response to Arguments

Art Unit: 3625

Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1-35 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.
